

Housing Associations: Leeds Federated

Background

Leeds Federated Housing Association is a registered social landlord that provides over 4000 homes in Leeds, Harrogate and North Yorkshire. Their mission is to provide quality housing and to 'sustain individuals and communities.'

Increasingly, housing associations find themselves tackling problems of anti-social behaviour and addressing social issues. Leeds Federated Housing have developed a model of good practice to address anti-social behaviour: enforcement, rehabilitation and prevention.

The main problems faced by Leeds Federated were racial harassment, threatening behaviour, vandalism and fly-tipping.

The Solution

Leeds Federated required a mobile surveillance solution to make redeployment of equipment simple and cost-effective.

The mobile networks used by WCCTV offer national coverage, which means live and recorded images can be accessed remotely from a mobile device anywhere, anytime.

WCCTV's systems have been designed to be rapidly deployable, and offer flexibility to the end users as they are able to transfer the system quickly from site to site.

The Result

"WCCTV's kit has helped us make effective use of time, and is very cost-effective for temporary monitoring in comparison with fixed systems. As an added benefit, we have also managed to tackle the problem of community confidence."

"Many anti-social behaviour orders (ASBOs) have been secured using CCTV footage as evidence. One of the main advantages is that victims and witnesses may not have to go through the ordeal of giving evidence."
